I wish every foster kid got a chance to show the world what it is like to be in foster care. To experience this opportunity was everything!

- Maxamillion Bryce Hamilton
a former foster youth

“This experience filled me with anxiety, confusion, frustration, fear, anger, and a myriad of other emotions - All the feelings that a young person in foster care goes through.”

MY SKY IS FALLING

An immersive story world that aims to raise awareness about the challenges American foster children face before they age out of the foster care system – Designed and created through Lydia Joyner’s experiences as a child in foster care.

Lydia Joyner along with Lance Weiler, Atley Loughridge, and many talented artists created a sci-fi world to create an environment to put participants from The United Nations to streetwalkers through and unforgettable experience to create empathy and compassion for our homeless teens and foster care youth.

Performed at IFP / Envision Event and DIY Days, My Sky is Falling has been invited to Congress

Lydia brought her foster care files and spoke through them allowing the participants to feel the weight of what became her life book instead of a baby book.
